

Person Centered Planning

“Person centered planning” means choosing a way of living for a person with an intellectual disability that is just right for them.

It is a type of community support where friends and family help people with intellectual disabilities to set goals for the future and then help them in reaching these goals.

This page has links to web sites with more information on Person-centered planning for people with intellectual disabilities and people with mental health problems